

pornography must be enforced more than regular pornography, hate speech on children's websites must be monitored more heavily than on regular sites, and internet hosting services must provide greater limitations on children's ability to buy products, search for content, create online accounts, etc.).

- It shall be unlawful for anyone to use, reproduce, distribute, or publicly display content, which copyright laws protect in the private domain.
 - Users can use public domain work, which no one owns and is unprotected from copyright laws.

International Hosts and Users

- It shall be lawful for anyone to create and start an internet hosting service, provided that they comply to the regulations above, for the betterment of society.
- If a foreign internet hosting service shall allow information, which the U.S. government has listed as unlawful, the U.S federal government shall restrict American citizens' reception of its site and services.
- The U.S. federal, state, and local governments shall not participate in the ensuring of freedom and safety for foreign users unless they shall act as a lawful negotiator between foreign governments and American internet hosting services. Instead, American internet hosting services shall make all decisions within the foreign arena, provided that they comply with the guidelines below.
- It shall be lawful for American internet hosting services to protect foreign citizens' freedom of speech, freedom from unnecessary searches, safety from data misuse,